3. How is the list of ETFs and Constituent Securities^[1] (which forms part of the Permitted Short Selling Securities list) different from the Approved Securities list?

Although they are not mutually exclusive and might even look similar at times, the list of Constituent Securities of ETFs is independent from Approved Securities list as the list of Constituent Securities of ETFs is meant for Permitted Short Selling only. The Approved Securities list is updated semi-annually while the list of ETFs and Constituent Securities is updated daily.

^[1] Pursuant to the BMS Rules, Constituent Securities refer to any of the securities admitted on the official list which forms the basket or part of the basket of securities required for the creation of an ETF unit and/or underlying an ETF unit.
